Dear Mrs. Yane,

Thank-you for your letter of November 24, and for the copy of your talk. As requested, I am returning it to you with this letter. It is a very interesting subject, and at first glance it may be difficult to believe. However, I suppose that the gravitational and/or magnetic attraction of the planets could cause solar events.

The weather has been very poor here for the past few months. I've looked at the sky every night this month so far, and I still have been unable to make a single observation. I just caught a view of the moon one night last week, as it broke through an opening in the clouds. Hudsons Bay is late in freezing this year, and not until it is frozen will the weather improve.

Well, that is all the news for now. Best regards and seasons greeting.

Good observing,

Jim Low
